The Commissioners have lately taken a great interest in the protection of lives along the line of the Baltimore and Potomac railroad. Some days age General Inspector Beggs was ordered to investigate the matter and report. Today he submitted the following report:

respectfully recommend that the company be directed to erect fences on the following portions of their line between the points named of the same character as the fences already so as to prevent traffic from 14th street to the south side of Maryland avenue at that point.

The railroad company have a switch flume that will not permit traffic to cross tracks at that point and Water street is unopened between 13th and 14th streets. 131/4 and 14th streets.

ON MARYLAND AVENUE.

On Maryland avenue between 6th and 7th streets the Baltimore and Potomac Company have only one track. This track leaves the track of 6th street near the center of Maryland avenue and passes to within about 10 feet of the curb on the south side of Maryland avenue, and so continues to the crossing of 7th street southwest. I do not recommend that a fence be erected on this part of the line for the reason that the south side of the avenue between 6th and 7th streets is solidly built up with residences and if a fence were creeked it. between 6th and 7th streets is solidly built up with residences, and if a fence were erected it would practically prevent the approach of a vehicle to a frontage thereon, unless at great risk; but the erection of a fence would reduce the space to about six feet, and there is a barrel gutter at the curb. If the fence were erected on the north side of the railroad tracks it would be about 4½ feet from the north rail of the track, and this, with the tracks of the Belt Line street railway would leave only about forty feet of the seventy-eight feet of the Maryland avenue roadway for public traffic, and this space would be divided into two spaces, the north one having the barrel gutter on the north side, to still further reduce the space.

The fence on the curve leading from 6th street to Virginia avenue is four and one-half feet from the rails, and from personal observaing traffic and could aid switching on 6th street. I would respectfully request that the Baltimore and Potomac Company be utged to try to arrange their switching work on 6th street so as to confine it to that street north of Maryland avenue, and thereby avoid the delays frequently caused to the Belt Line road at Maryland avenue crossing. I have at times witnessed delays at that point which in my opinion wore unnecessary. The extension of the single track on 6th street, I think, would afford this relief. The street railroads do at no time cause a detention to steam railroads, while the reverse is too often the case.

There are some forty-five departments, and in cases where the posts do not attend the encampment those of the members who are here are expected to march with the department to which their posts belong. There is another reason why organizations other than the Grand Army posts are not invited to take part in the parade, and that is the immense numbers which will probably be in line representing the membership of the posts.

It is expected that there will be some 60,000 men in line, to say nothing of 700 mounted men and 300 bands. Under the order of the encampment the line of march is not to exceed two miles. Then the parade will start from the Capitol, march up the avenue and disband at 17th street.

When quiet was restored Dr. John Hall pronounced the benediction and the services ended by the firing of a salute of twenty-one guns from the United States monitor Mintanomoh stationed in the Hudsoo.

During the firing of the salute the carriages of the Washington party were surrounded by their friends, who vied with one another in pressing forward to shake hands with the chief magnatrate.
